You understand and acknowledge that your business account is not a payment account. Presently, this account does not support functions such as store value, record balance, or initiate corresponding payment instructions.

Business accounts enable people and organizations to use PayPal Services to receive payments for goods and services even if their business is not incorporated.

With a business account, you can do things like:

- Use a company or business name as the name on your PayPal Account.

- Allow employees access to some of the features of your PayPal Account.
- Sign up for PayPal products that meet your business needs.

Opening an Account

In order to open and maintain a PayPal Account, you must provide PayPal with correct and updated account information, including but not limited to personal information, financial information, and other information related to you or your business. You must not be a financial institution or any other institution engaged in or providing credit or loans, financing, wealth management services, guarantees, trust services, currency exchange or any other financial business.

For the purpose of opening a PayPal Account, you must comply with PayPal's Know Your Client ("KYC"), Know Your Business ("KYB"), Client Due Diligence ("CDD") and other verification requirements such as real-name certification. You agree that you will deliver to PayPal the relevant information and documents for PayPal's verification, including but not limited to your business license, ID of the legal representative or the responsible person, audiovisual materials or other evidence of genuine account-opening intentions, phone numbers, etc. If you engage in business activities that are exclusively operated or controlled, or require prior administrative approval according to national regulations, you should also provide the relevant qualification certificates. If any of the above information changes, or in case of a change in your business location or domain name, or suspension of business operations, you should notify us in advance. Otherwise, we have the right to suspend providing PayPal Services to you depending on the circumstances. You will be responsible for any complaints or disputes arising out of your failure to notify us in a timely manner. In accordance with national laws, regulations, rules, industry standards, and policy requirements, we are entitled to request that you provide additional relevant information and materials. If you fail to submit on time or such information and materials fail to pass our review, we are entitled to terminate this Agreement or suspend all or part of the functions of your PayPal Account. You hereby authorize PayPal to share your information with PayPal Service Providers when necessary for the purpose of verification and authentication, provision or use of PayPal Services, or conducting relevant transactions in connection with your PayPal Account pursuant to this Agreement. You also acknowledge and agree that PayPal, in its sole discretion, is entitled to determine, including through evaluations carried out by PayPal Service Providers, whether your information and documents are sufficient for PayPal KYC, KYB, CDD and/or any other verification purposes. Should PayPal decide to engage a PayPal Service Provider to carry out such verification, you hereby authorize PayPal to disclose the information and documents related to your identity to that PayPal Service Provider for identity verification purposes under this Agreement.

You must keep your mailing address, email address and other contact information current in your PayPal Account profile. You must notify PayPal immediately if there are any changes to any information that you have provided in the PayPal Account profile.

You understand and agree that the email address and phone number designated during your opening of a PayPal Account will serve as your account's login information. You shall follow our rules to apply for any variation and verification. We are entitled to validate and authenticate your transaction instructions based on your login email address or phone number along with your login password. When your login account information and password pass the validation check, the PayPal Account is deemed to be operated by you with transaction instructions sent by yourself.

You are responsible for maintaining adequate security and control of any and all login account, IDs, passwords, personal identification numbers, or any other codes that you use to access your PayPal Account and the PayPal Services.

By opening a PayPal Account, you certify to PayPal that: (i) you are using it primarily for business or commercial purposes; (ii) each service you use under this Agreement is backed up by a true, authentic and legitimate transaction; you are not allowed to use PayPal Services for fraudulent or illegitimate transactions; and (iii) you guarantee the legitimacy of your operational activities within your business scope.

To the extent PayPal deems it necessary, you also consent to PayPal obtaining your personal and/or business credit report from a qualified credit reporting agency (including signing or providing any necessary documents to that effect) when applying to open an account, when you request certain new products and whenever PayPal reasonably believes there may be an increased level of risk, to PayPal or anyone else, associated with your PayPal Account.

Third Party permissions

You must be the beneficial owner of your PayPal Account, and conduct business only on behalf of yourself. You are not allowed to entrust or transfer your payment receiving business to any third party without PayPal's prior written consent.

You acknowledge and understand the legal consequences and disciplinary measures of leasing, lending, selling and purchasing a PayPal Account. You represent and warrant that you will open and use your PayPal Account on behalf of yourself only and in accordance with all applicable Laws.

You may expressly grant, remove and manage permissions for some third parties to take certain actions on your behalf. In some cases, you can do this when logged into your PayPal Account – in other cases, you can do this directly with the third party. You acknowledge that if you grant permission for a third party to take actions on your behalf, PayPal may disclose certain information about your PayPal Account to this third party.

- provide account information services to access information about your PayPal Account on your behalf;
- confirm whether an amount necessary for the execution of a card-based payment transaction is available on your account; or
- provide payment initiation services to initiate payments from your account on your behalf.

Granting permission to any third party to access your PayPal Account in any way does not relieve you of any of your responsibilities under this Agreement. You are liable to PayPal for the actions that you authorize any third party to carry out. You will not hold PayPal responsible for, and you will indemnify and hold PayPal harmless from, any liability, relating to, arising from, or in any way connected with, the actions or inactions of any such third party in connection with the permissions you grant, subject to your mandatory legal rights.

You are prohibited to use the gateway interface and the identifications for any purpose beyond the scope of this Agreement. You are also not allowed to permit any third party to use your gateway interface or identifications. PayPal reserves the right to claim damages and to impose fines against you if you breach the above stipulations.

Closing Your PayPal Account

You may close your PayPal Account and terminate your relationship with us at any time without cost or penalty, but you will remain liable for all obligations related to your PayPal Account even after it is closed. When you close your PayPal Account, PayPal will cancel any scheduled or incomplete transactions and is entitled to stop providing you with PayPal Services immediately and without further notice. You must withdraw or transfer any available fund from your PayPal Account before closing it.

In certain cases, you may not close your PayPal Account, including:

- To evade an investigation.
- If you have a pending transaction or an open dispute or claim.
- If your PayPal Account is subject to a hold or limitation.
- If it is not in accordance with, or permitted by, applicable Laws.

Account Statements

follow all terms and conditions as outlined under the PayPal Worldwide Terms. You will also be eligible to apply for the services provided by PPCN pursuant to RMB Transfer Service Terms and Conditions and/or Vendor Payouts Terms and Conditions.

Accepting Payments from Buyers of Goods and Services

Receiving payments

If you use your PayPal Account to receive payments for the sale of goods or services, you must:

- Pay any applicable fees for receiving the payments.
- Not ask your buyer to send you a payment as a personal transaction (often referred to as using the “send payments to a friend or family member” feature). If you do so, PayPal may remove your PayPal Account's ability to accept payments from friends or family members.

When you use your PayPal Account to receive payments for the sale of goods or services:

- If the buyer is located outside of the PRC, the transaction between you and the buyer needs to have a trade substance in accordance with applicable Laws. PayPal is entitled to collect information about the transaction, share such information with PayPal Service Providers in order to provide PayPal Services, and report it to any competent authorities pursuant to applicable Laws including, without limitation, the People's Bank of China and the State Administration of Foreign Exchange.
- You must provide the following information to PayPal: a complete description of the goods or services you sold; intact policies relating to returns and refunds; and delivery and, if applicable, cancellation details.
- You must have in place a well-established customer service system.
- You must publish a refund and return policy, as well as a privacy policy, where required by law.
- You must deal with any errors or disputes relating to, arising from, or in any way connected with, the transaction and protect your customers' legitimate rights and interests.
- You should strengthen the daily maintenance and management of your website, equipment and software to ensure the stability of your systems.
- You must guarantee the safety and accuracy respectively of the transaction and the account information in accordance with the applicable Laws relating to internet payment security; otherwise, PayPal reserves the right to limit your transaction amount or suspend or terminate this Agreement and to require you to bear the corresponding liabilities for a breach of this Agreement.

- You shall bear the corresponding responsibilities if you commit any irregularities such as tampering with the transaction data, failing to submit the transaction verification information or facilitating any illegal cashing-out or money laundering.
- You must cooperate with any investigation of risk events when a fraudulent transaction occurs or is suspected. Your obligations include, but not limited to, providing basic information on yourself (and your business) or the secondary merchant, and all details of the transaction.
- If you operate a platform, you must be properly equipped with manpower and well-established systems to effectively identify, trace and manage the business of your secondary merchants when necessary. You shall assume any and all loss relating to, arising from, or in any way connected with, the poor management and development of your secondary merchants. Please note, your secondary merchants are forbidden to further develop any merchant under its level.
- Records of all transaction orders must be kept for at least five (5) years. You shall be solely responsible for any and all losses relating to, arising from, or in any way connected with, loss of order records or improper handling of the order records.

No Surcharges

You agree that you will not impose a surcharge or any other fee for accepting PayPal as a payment method. You may charge a handling fee in connection with the sale of goods or services as long as the handling fee does not operate as a surcharge and is not higher than the handling fee you charge for non-PayPal transactions.

Presentation of PayPal

You must treat PayPal payment methods or marks at least on par with any other payment methods offered at your points of sale, wherever PayPal's branded services are integrated, including your websites or mobile applications. This includes at least equal or better: logo placement, position within any point of sale, and treatment in terms of payment flow, terms, conditions, restrictions, and fees, in each case as compared to other marks and payment methods at your points of sale. Further, you must not present any payment method or mark upstream (or at an earlier point in the checkout experience) from the presentment of any of PayPal's services or marks.

In representations to your customers or in public communications, you must not mischaracterize any PayPal service as a payment method or exhibit a preference for other payment methods over any PayPal service. Within all of your points of sale, you agree not to try to dissuade or inhibit your customers from using PayPal or encourage the customer to use an alternate payment method. If you enable your customers to pay you with PayPal, whenever you display or exhibit the payment methods that you accept (either within any point of sale or in your marketing materials, advertising and other customer communications), you agree to display the PayPal services payment marks at least as prominently, and in at least as positive a manner, as you do for all other payment methods.

Taxes and information reporting

General information

PayPal consumer fees and merchant fees are exclusive of any taxes, charges, or similar assessments of any nature, including, without limitation, value-added, sales, digital services, stamp, transfer, or withholding taxes, assessable by any jurisdiction or governmental authority (collectively, "Taxes").

PayPal and you shall each be responsible to pay our own Taxes arising in connection with the performance of our respective obligations from your use of PayPal services.

Paying for PayPal's services

If you are paying for a PayPal service, you agree to pay to PayPal the amount of any legally applicable Taxes imposed on any amount due from you to PayPal.

You agree not to withhold any Taxes on amounts payable by you to PayPal unless you are legally required to do so. If you withhold any Taxes, the amount payable by you to PayPal shall not be decreased by the amount withheld. You agree that PayPal is entitled to receive the full amount that would have been received had there been no withholding of any Taxes. Upon request by PayPal, you will deliver to PayPal in a timely manner any written documentation evidencing your payment of Taxes to the relevant authorities.

Your additional responsibilities and acknowledgments

It is your responsibility to determine what, if any, taxes apply to the payments you make or receive, and it is solely your responsibility to assess, collect, report, and remit the correct taxes to the appropriate authority. PayPal is not responsible for determining whether any taxes apply to your transaction or for calculating, collecting, reporting, or remitting taxes arising from any transaction.

You acknowledge that PayPal may have a legal obligation to make reports, and will make such reports, to tax authorities regarding transactions that PayPal processes on your behalf. Additional information can be found in relevant help center.

Information reporting

PayPal may request that you provide PayPal with your tax identification number and/or other tax related documentation or information. If you do not provide the requested information to PayPal or keep documentation up to date in your PayPal account, you may be subject to account holds or limitations and withholding Taxes at the applicable rates on gross payments received. PayPal will remit any such withholding Taxes to the appropriate tax authorities, and you acknowledge PayPal may be prohibited from refunding any amounts to you once these have been sent to the appropriate tax authorities.

If a currency conversion is required on a payment of withholding Taxes, the amount due to the relevant tax authority will be calculated by PayPal in accordance with PayPal's currency conversion terms when we process the withholding Taxes. To minimize risks relating to exchange rate fluctuations, account holds and limitations, tax withholding, and remittance to the relevant tax authority, you should add or confirm your taxpayer information to PayPal.

Your refund policy and privacy policy

You must publish a refund and return policy, as well as a privacy policy, where required by applicable Laws.

Payment review

When PayPal identifies a potentially high-risk transaction, PayPal reviews the transaction more closely before allowing it to proceed. When this happens, PayPal will place a hold on the transaction and notify the seller to delay shipping of the item or providing the service. As a buyer, this may delay your receipt of the item you purchase. If PayPal clears the transaction, PayPal will notify the seller and direct the seller to ship the item or provide the service. If PayPal doesn't clear the transaction, PayPal will cancel it and return the funds to the buyer, unless PayPal is legally required to take other action.

Marketplace sellers

If you're a seller on a marketplace or through a third-party application where PayPal is offered, you must comply with any rules that apply to the marketplace's or the third party application's buyer protection program for sales you make through that forum. Any such protections may require you to take certain actions and may impact how claims are processed.

Card not present transactions

Whenever a buyer uses a debit or credit card as the payment method for a transaction using their account to buy something from you as a seller, the transaction will be processed as a "card not present" transaction.

Accepting preauthorized payments

To the extent it is available as a PayPal Service, as a seller you can accept payments from a buyer's account through preauthorized payments either on a one-time, regular or sporadic basis. This type of transaction is sometimes called a "billing agreement," "subscription," "recurring payment," "reference transaction," "preauthorized debit or PAD", "preauthorized transfer," "pre-approved payment" or "automatic payment."

If you receive preauthorized payments from buyers:
You must:	You must not:
Obtain each buyer's prior authorization for the amount, frequency, and duration of any such payment.
Provide a simple and easily accessible online cancellation procedure, if buyers sign up for preauthorized payments online.
Provide buyers the ability to stop any such payment up to 3 Business Days before the date scheduled for payment.	Restart future payments without the buyer's written authorization, if a buyer has stopped or canceled a preauthorized payment.
Notify the buyer at least 10 days in advance of the amount and date of each preauthorized payment if the preauthorized payment will vary from the preauthorized amount or (at the buyer's option) any payment that is in an amount that falls outside of the pre-determined range.

Transaction Fees for Online Payments

Standard transaction fees The fees you pay when selling goods or services, and the buyer pays using their PayPal account (or using another authorized wallet) can be found on the Commercial Payments Fees table. Please note that:

- PayPal may adjust the fees applicable to future transactions that you process using PayPal. PayPal will provide you at least 30 days' advance notice of any fee increase or the introduction of a new type of fee unless a shorter period of notice is permitted pursuant to applicable Laws.
- If you accept payments using a PayPal product, the fees applicable to those products will apply to your transactions.

Micropayments Fees

You may qualify to receive micropayments pricing for the sale of goods and services through your PayPal Account, if your transactions typically average less than USD10. In order to qualify, you must have a PayPal Account that is in good standing (for example, no limitations or deficient amount in your PayPal Account), and you must submit an application and have it approved by us.

If your PayPal Account is approved to accept micropayments, the fees found in the Micropayment Fees table will apply to all transactions for the sale of goods or services processed through your PayPal Account, instead of the Commercial Payments Fees.

By applying for Micropayments for Digital Goods, you agree that for digital goods transactions in respect of which you receive amounts up to those listed in the Micropayment Fees table, if a buyer opens a Dispute, PayPal may reverse the transaction and remove the funds from your PayPal Account without requiring the buyer to escalate the dispute to a claim.

Refunds, Reversals and Chargebacks

General information

If you receive a payment for selling goods or services that is later refunded or invalidated for any reason, you are responsible for the full amount of the payment sent to you plus any fees (including any applicable Chargeback fees or Dispute fees described below).

Whenever a transaction is refunded or otherwise reversed, PayPal will refund or reverse the transaction from your PayPal Account in the same currency as the original transaction. If the available amount in your PayPal account for a particular currency is insufficient to cover the amount of a refund or reversal, PayPal will perform a currency conversion, usually outside of China, in order to refund or reverse the transaction. PayPal's transaction exchange rate (including PayPal's currency conversion fee) at the time the refund or reversal is processed will be used. In compliance with applicable Laws, if any currency conversion is processed by PayPal Service Providers in China, PPCN will not charge any currency conversion fees.

If you refund the transaction, PayPal will retain the fees you paid as set out on applicable Fees page.

Payments that are invalidated and reversed

Payments to you may be invalidated and reversed by PayPal if:

- You lose a PayPal Buyer Protection claim submitted to us or a PayPal Affiliate by a buyer, including as a result of your failure to respond in a timely manner. Please see below for details on PayPal Buyer Protection.
- You fail to respond or provide accurate and complete information in response to PayPal's inquiries related to a buyer's claims or chargebacks for a particular transaction in a timely manner within the timeframe communicated to you by PayPal.
- Your buyer pursues a chargeback related to a card-funded transaction and the transaction is not eligible for PayPal Seller Protection. The card issuer, not PayPal, determines whether a buyer is successful when they pursue a chargeback related to a card-funded transaction.

- You do not fulfill the transaction as promised or you cannot provide proof of shipment or proof of delivery when required.
- PayPal's investigation of a bank reversal made by a buyer or the buyer's bank finds that the transaction was fraudulent.
- PayPal sent the payment to you in error.
- The payment was unauthorized.
- PayPal is obligated by applicable Laws to reject a transaction.
- You received the payment for activities that breached this Agreement, PayPal's Acceptable Use Policy, or any other agreement between you and PPCN or between you and any PayPal Affiliate.
- Other incidents pursuant to applicable Laws.

When you receive a payment, you are liable to PayPal for the full amount of the payment sent to you plus any fees if the payment is later invalidated for any reason.

If the buyer paid in another currency, the full amount of the payment sent to you may be calculated in that currency, using PayPal's transaction exchange rate (including currency conversion fee) at the time the refund or reversal is processed.

If the available amount in your PayPal Account is insufficient to cover your liability for the payment amount plus the fees, then this will result in a deficient amount in your PayPal Account. Any deficient amount in your PayPal Account represents an amount that you owe to us, and, in this situation, you must immediately add funds to your PayPal Account to eliminate it. If you do not do so, PayPal may:

- recover any amounts due to PayPal by debiting the available funds of your PayPal Account;
- engage in collection efforts to recover such amounts from you;
- take any and all action as outlined under the PayPal Worldwide Terms; or
- place a limitation or take other action on your PayPal Account as outlined under Restricted Activities, Holds & Other Actions PayPal May Take.

Dispute fees

PayPal will charge a Dispute fee to sellers for facilitating the online dispute resolution process for transactions that are processed either through a buyer's PayPal account or through a PayPal guest checkout. The Dispute fee applies when the buyer pursues a claim directly with PayPal, a chargeback with their card issuer, or a reversal with their bank.

The Dispute fee will be charged at either the Standard Dispute fee rate or the High Volume Dispute fee rate. The Dispute fee will be charged in the currency which you selected for the original transaction listing. If the transaction was in a currency not listed in the Dispute fee table, the fee charged will be in your primary holding currency. The Dispute fee will be deducted from your PayPal account after the claim is decided.

The Dispute fee amount will be determined when the dispute is created. The fee is based on the ratio of the total transaction amount of all Item Not Received and Significantly Not as Described claims you receive compared to the total amount of your sales for the previous three calendar months. Your total claims include all Item Not Received and Significantly Not as Described claims that are filed either directly with and escalated to PayPal or with the buyer's card issuer or bank. Your total claims do not include claims for Unauthorized Transactions. For example, for the month of September, your disputes ratio will be calculated by considering your total claims to sales ratio over June, July and August. The claims ratio for September will determine the dispute fee for all claims filed in October.

If your Disputes Ratio is 1.5% or more and you had more than 100 sales transactions in the previous three full calendar months, you will be charged the High Volume Dispute fee for each dispute. Otherwise, you will be charged the Standard Dispute fee for each dispute.

You will not be charged a Standard Dispute fee for disputes that are:

- Inquiries in PayPal's Resolution Center that are not escalated to a claim with PayPal.
- Resolved directly between you and the buyer and not escalated to a claim with PayPal.
- Filed by the buyer directly with PayPal as an Unauthorized Transaction.
- Deemed by PayPal in its sole discretion to have met all the requirements under PayPal Seller Protection program.
- Claims with a transaction value that is less than twice the amount of a Standard Dispute fee.
- Decided in your favour by PayPal or your issuer.

You will not be charged a High Volume Dispute fee for disputes that are:

- Inquiries in PayPal's Resolution Center and not escalated to a claim with PayPal.
- Resolved directly between you and the buyer and not escalated to a claim with PayPal.
- Filed by the buyer directly with PayPal as an Unauthorized Transaction.

Sellers charged High Volume Dispute fees may be required to provide a remediation plan which includes an explanation of the cause of the increased dispute rate, the actions taken to reduce disputes, and the timelines for those actions.

If you engage in a Restricted Activity, PayPal may charge the High Volume Dispute fees for all current and future disputes irrespective of your dispute ratio or sales volumes, given PayPal's increased involvement as a result of such Restricted Activity.

Disputes listed above may be excluded from being charged a Standard Dispute fee or a High Volume Dispute fee, but the claim itself may still be included in the overall calculation of your dispute ratio.

Chargeback fees

For transactions that are not processed either through a buyer's PayPal account or through a guest checkout, and where the buyer pursues a chargeback for the transaction with their card issuer, PayPal will charge you a chargeback fee for facilitating the chargeback process. This fee will apply regardless of whether the buyer is successful in pursuing the chargeback with the card issuer.

The applicable chargeback fee will be deducted from your PayPal Account. The chargeback fee is the amount specified on the Chargeback Fees table in the currency of the original transaction. If the transaction was in a currency not listed in the Chargeback Fees table the fee charged will be in your primary holding currency.

If a buyer files a chargeback, the card issuer, not PayPal, will determine who wins the chargeback.

Impact of various Buyer Protection processes on sellers

You should read in its entirety and understand PayPal's Buyer Protection program, and if you sell goods and services to, and receive payments from, buyers with PayPal accounts in countries/regions other than your own, you should also be familiar with the PayPal Buyer Protection available to buyers in each of those countries/regions. Buyers' rights under these programs may impact you as a seller. You can find this information on PayPal's programs on the applicable legal agreements page of the website of the applicable PayPal Affiliate by selecting your buyer's location at the top of the page and referring to the applicable user agreement for that country/region.

If you lose a claim under PayPal's Buyer Protection program in any country/region:

- You will be required to reimburse PayPal for your liability.
- Your liability will include the full purchase price of the item plus the original shipping cost (and in some cases you may not receive the item back), and the PayPal fees that you were charged for the transaction. This applies when you are the primary seller or a secondary seller of goods or services. For example, event ticketing agents, or online travel agents will forfeit the full purchase amount paid by the buyer. In some cases you may not receive the item back.
- The Buyer Protection claim will only be considered fully resolved if:

- the refund to a buyer is processed through PayPal, or
 - you provide evidence acceptable to PayPal, in its sole discretion, that the buyer agreed to the alternative resolution provided.
- You will not receive a refund of the PayPal fees that you paid in connection with the sale.
- If the claim was that the item received was Significantly Not as Described, you may not receive the item back, or you may be required to accept the item back and pay for the return shipping costs.
- If the claim was that the item received was Significantly Not as Described and related to an item you sold that is counterfeit, you will be required to provide a full refund to the buyer and you may not receive the item back.

Restricted activities, holds & other actions PayPal may take

Restricted activities

In connection with your use of PayPal websites, your PayPal Account, the PayPal Services, or in the course of your interactions with PayPal, other PayPal customers, or third parties, you will not:

- Breach this Agreement, PayPal's Acceptable Use Policy, or any other agreement between you and PPCN or between you and any PayPal Affiliate.
- Violate any law, statute, ordinance, or regulation (for example, those governing financial services, consumer protections, unfair competition, anti-discrimination or false advertising).

You agree to cooperate with the routing inspection conducted by PayPal and/or PayPal Service Providers at least once a year.

You agree that PayPal is entitled to, even after the termination of this Agreement, inquire about and have claims against any transaction prior to the termination.

When you declare bankruptcy, unless otherwise required by applicable Laws, you must guarantee PayPal's status as one of your creditors.

Holds and Limitations

What are holds and limitations

Under certain circumstances, in order to protect PayPal and the security and integrity of the network of buyers and sellers that use the PayPal Services, PayPal may take account-level or transaction-level actions. Unless otherwise noted, if PayPal takes any of the actions described here, PayPal will provide you with notice of PayPal's actions, but PayPal retains the sole discretion to take these actions. To request information in connection with an account limitation or hold, you should visit the PayPal's Resolution Center or follow the instructions in PayPal's email notice with respect to the limitation or hold.

You acknowledge and agree that PayPal's decision about holds and limitations may be based on confidential criteria that are essential to PayPal's management of risk and the protection of PPCN, PayPal Affiliates, PayPal's customers and/or service providers. PayPal may use proprietary fraud and risk modeling when assessing the risk associated with your PayPal Account. In addition, PayPal may be restricted by regulation or a governmental authority from disclosing certain information to you about such decisions. PayPal has no obligation to disclose the details of PayPal's risk management or security procedures to you.

In order to facilitate PayPal's actions described above and allow PayPal to assess the level of risk associated with your PayPal Account, you agree to cooperate with PayPal's reasonable requests for financial statements and other documentation or information in a timely fashion.

Holds

A hold is an action that PayPal may take under certain circumstances either at the transaction level or the account level. When PayPal places a temporary hold on a payment, the funds shall not be available to either the sender or you or the recipient, as applicable. PayPal reviews many factors before placing a hold on a payment, including: account tenure, transaction activity, business type, past customer disputes, and overall customer satisfaction. Some common situations where PayPal will hold payments include:

- New sellers or sellers who have limited selling activity.
- Payments for higher-risk categories like electronics or tickets.
- Sellers who have performance issues, or a high rate of buyer dissatisfaction or disputes.

Holds based on PayPal's risk decisions

PayPal may place a hold on payments sent to your PayPal Account if, in PayPal's sole discretion, PayPal believes that there may be a high level of risk associated with you, your PayPal Account, or your transactions or that placing such a hold is necessary to comply with regulatory requirements. PayPal makes decisions about whether to place a payment hold based on a number of factors, including information available to PayPal from both internal sources and third parties. When PayPal places a hold on a payment, the funds will appear in your PayPal Account with an indication that they are unavailable or pending. PayPal will notify you, either through your PayPal Account or directly by phone or email, whenever PayPal places a hold.

Risk-based holds generally remain in place for up to 30 days from the date the payment was received into your PayPal Account unless PayPal has a reason to continue to hold the payment. PayPal may release the hold earlier under certain circumstances (for example, if you've uploaded shipment tracking information related to the transaction), but any earlier release is at PayPal's sole discretion. The hold may last longer than 30 days if the payment is challenged as a payment that should be invalidated and reversed based on a disputed transaction as discussed below in the following section Holds Based on Disputed Transactions. In this case, PayPal will hold the payment in your PayPal Account until the matter is resolved.

Holds related to marketplace transactions

If you're a seller on a marketplace or through a third party application where PayPal is offered, a hold may be placed on a payment sent to you at the instruction of the applicable marketplace or third party. This is done once you have granted PayPal permission to have your funds held and will be in accordance with your agreement with the third party. These holds will appear in your PayPal Account. If you have questions about why the applicable marketplace or third party instructed PayPal to put these holds in place, you will need to contact the marketplace or third party directly.

Holds based on disputed transactions

If a payment sent to you as a seller is challenged as a payment that should be invalidated and reversed, PayPal may place a temporary hold on the funds in your PayPal Account to cover the amount that could be reversed. Any of the situations described under Refunds, Reversals and Chargebacks are situations that could result in PayPal placing a hold on a payment. If PayPal determines the transaction should not be reversed, PayPal will lift the temporary hold. If PayPal determines the transaction should be reversed, PayPal will remove the funds from your PayPal Account.

Account limitations

Limitations prevent you from completing certain actions with your PayPal Account, such as sending or receiving payments, or withdrawing the fund. These limitations are implemented to help protect PPCN, PayPal Affiliates, buyers and sellers when PayPal notices , an increased financial risk, or activity that appears to us as unusual or suspicious. Limitations also help PayPal collect information necessary for keeping your PayPal Account open.

There are several reasons why PayPal may limit your access to your PayPal Account or the PayPal Services, and/or limit access to your funds, including:

- If PayPal suspects someone could be using your PayPal Account without your knowledge, PayPal will limit it for your protection and look into the fraudulent activity.
- If the buyer's debit or credit card issuer alerts PayPal that someone has used the buyer's card without the buyer's permission.
- If your debit or credit card issuer alerts PayPal that someone has used your card without your permission. Similarly, if your bank lets PayPal know that there have been unauthorized transfers between your PayPal Account and your bank account.
- In order to comply with applicable Laws.
- If PayPal reasonably believes you have breached this Agreement, PayPal's Acceptable Use Policy, or any other agreement between you and PPCN or between you and any PayPal Affiliate.
- Seller performance indicating your PayPal Account is high risk. Examples include: indications of poor selling performance because you've received an unusually high number of claims and chargebacks selling an entirely new or high cost product, or if your typical sales volume increases rapidly.

If PayPal limits access to your PayPal Account, PayPal will provide you with notice of PayPal's actions and the opportunity to request restoration of access if, in PayPal's sole discretion, PayPal deems it appropriate.

You will need to resolve any issues with your PayPal Account before a limitation can be removed. Normally, this is done after you provide PayPal with the information PayPal requests. However, if PayPal reasonably believes a risk still exists after you have provided PayPal that information, PayPal may take actions to protect PPCN, PayPal Affiliates, PPCN and PayPal Affiliates' users, a third party, or you from reversals, fees, fines, penalties, legal and/or regulatory risks and any other liability.

Court orders, regulatory requirements or other legal processes

If PayPal is notified of a court order or other legal process (including garnishment or any equivalent process) affecting you, or if PayPal otherwise believes PayPal is required to do so in order to comply with applicable Laws or regulatory requirements, PayPal may be required to take certain actions, including holding payments to /from your PayPal Account, placing a limitation on your PayPal Account, or releasing your funds. PayPal will decide, in PayPal's sole discretion, which action is required of PayPal. Unless the court order, applicable Laws, regulatory requirement or other legal process requires otherwise, PayPal will notify you of these actions. PayPal does not have an obligation to contest or appeal any court order or legal process involving you or your PayPal Account. When PayPal implements a hold or limitation as a result of a court order, applicable Laws, regulatory requirement or other legal process, the hold or limitation will remain in place for as long as reasonably necessary, as determined by PayPal in its sole discretion.

Anti-money laundering, counter terrorism financing and sanctions

In order to comply with applicable Laws, the policies of PayPal Affiliates (including, without limitation, PayPal's anti-money laundering program and PayPal's enterprise compliance sanctions policy), and PayPal policies in relation to the provision or use of the PayPal Services, including, without limitation, the policies of PPCN and PayPal Affiliates relating to anti-money laundering, countering the financing of terrorism, compliance with government sanctions or embargoes, satisfying reporting requirements, requests for information or requirements to produce information to applicable authorities, PPCN and PayPal Affiliates may, to the extent not expressly prohibited by PRC law, and in addition to any other actions that PPCN and/or PayPal Affiliates may take under this Agreement:

- prohibit you from entering or concluding transactions involving certain persons or entities (including any person or entity that is itself sanctioned, is owned more than 50 percent by a person or entity that is itself sanctioned, or is connected, directly or indirectly, to any person or entity that is sanctioned) under economic and trade sanctions imposed by any regulator in any jurisdiction where any PayPal Affiliate is located or conducts businesses, or by any international organization, including

- sanctions, resolutions or orders of the United Nations, the United States of America, the European Union or any foreign country as applicable;
- investigate any payment or other information sent to or by you or on behalf of you, and conduct screening on transactions that may result in PPCN or any PayPal Affiliate delaying, blocking or refusing to make any payment to or by you;
 - report suspicious transactions or potential breaches of sanctions to any applicable regulator in any jurisdiction where PPCN or any PayPal Affiliate may have a legal obligation to make such reports to meet its reporting obligations or may choose to do so in its sole discretion; and
 - take any action it believes to be necessary to comply with applicable Laws, the policies of PPCN and/or any PayPal Affiliate, including, without limitation, freezing funds in your PayPal Account, blocking or rejecting a transaction in connection with your PayPal Account, refusing a request for funds from you, not allowing you to use PayPal Services, delaying or cancelling a transaction, suspending, ceasing or refusing to provide all or part of the PayPal Services to you, closing your PayPal Account, or terminating this Agreement.

PayPal shall not have any obligation to notify you if PPCN or any PayPal Affiliate takes any of the above actions in advance, nor shall PayPal have any obligation to inform you if PPCN, or any PayPal Affiliate takes any of the above actions until a reasonable time after it is permitted to do so under applicable Laws. Neither PPCN nor any PayPal Affiliate, including their respective directors, officers, employees, agents, advisers, consultants, joint ventures, service providers and suppliers, shall be liable for any loss arising out of any action taken or any delay or failure by them in providing PayPal Services pursuant to the above provisions.

Liability for Unauthorized Transactions

Prevention of Unauthorized Transactions

To protect yourself from unauthorized activity in your PayPal Account, you should regularly log into your PayPal Account and review your PayPal Account statement. PayPal will notify you of each transaction by sending an email to your primary email address on file. You should review these transaction notifications to ensure that each transaction was authorized and accurately completed.

PayPal will protect you from unauthorized activity in your PayPal Account. When this protection applies, PayPal will cover you for the full amount of unauthorized activity as long as you cooperate with PayPal and follow the procedures described below.

What is an Unauthorized Transaction

An "Unauthorized Transaction" occurs when a payment is sent from your PayPal Account that you did not authorize and that did not benefit you. For example, if someone steals your password, uses the password to access your PayPal Account, and sends a payment from your PayPal Account, an Unauthorized Transaction has occurred.

What is not considered an Unauthorized Transaction

The following are NOT considered Unauthorized Transactions:

- If you give someone access to your PayPal Account (by giving them your account login information) and they use your PayPal Account without your knowledge or permission. You are responsible for transactions made in this situation.
- Invalidation and reversal of a payment as a result of the actions described under Refunds, Reversals and Chargebacks.

Reporting an Unauthorized Transaction

You should contact PayPal's Customer Service immediately if you believe:

- there has been an Unauthorized Transaction sent from your PayPal Account;
- there has been unauthorized access to your PayPal Account;
- your PayPal Account login information has been lost or stolen; or
- any device you have used to access your PayPal Account has been lost, stolen or deactivated.

You must give PayPal all available information relating to the circumstances of any Unauthorized Transactions and/or unauthorized access, and/or misappropriated or unauthorized use of your PayPal Account, and take all reasonable steps requested to assist PayPal in the investigation.

If you notify PayPal of an Unauthorized Transaction within sixty (60) days of the transaction and PayPal is satisfied that it is an Unauthorized Transaction, you will be eligible for 100% protection for the Unauthorized Transaction.

Except as otherwise expressly provided under this Agreement, you shall be fully liable for any and all loss incurred by any unauthorized access and/or unauthorized use of your PayPal Account, except to the extent that any such loss has been directly caused by PayPal' gross negligence.

Error Resolution

What is an Error

An "Error" means the following:

- a processing error made by PayPal, its supplier(s) or a PayPal Service Provider in which your PayPal Account is mistakenly debited or credited, or when a transaction is incorrectly recorded in your PayPal Account.
- You send a payment and the incorrect amount is debited from your PayPal Account.
- A transaction is missing from or not properly identified in your PayPal Account statement.
- PayPal makes a computational or mathematical error related to your PayPal Account.

What is not considered an Error

The following are NOT considered errors:

- If you give someone access to your PayPal Account (by giving them your account login information) and they use your PayPal Account without your knowledge or permission. You are responsible for transactions made in this situation.
- Invalidation and reversal of a payment as a result of the actions described under Refunds, Reversals and Chargebacks.
- If you erroneously send a payment to the wrong party, or send a payment for the wrong amount (based on a typographical error, for example). (Your only recourse in this instance will be to contact the party to whom you sent the payment and ask them to refund the payment. PayPal will not reimburse you or reverse a payment that you have made in error.)

In case of errors or questions about your electronic transfers

Contact PayPal at PayPal's Resolution Center.

Notify PayPal as soon as you can, if you think your statement or receipt is wrong or if you need more information about a transfer listed on the statement or receipt. PayPal must hear from you no later than 60 days after PayPal sent the FIRST statement on which the problem or error appeared.

- Tell PayPal your name, email address and account number (if any).
- Describe the error or the transfer you are unsure about, and explain as clearly as you can why you believe it is an error or why you need more information.
- Tell PayPal the amount of the suspected error.

If you tell PayPal orally, PayPal may require that you send to PayPal your complaint or question in writing within 10 Business Days. PayPal will endeavor to complete its investigation within 10 Business Days after PayPal receives your notification of the suspected error. If PayPal needs more time, however, PayPal may take up to 45 days to investigate your complaint or question (and up to 90 days in the limited circumstances described below).

For errors involving new PayPal Accounts (i.e. where the first transaction in respect of your PayPal Account occurred less than 30 Business Days before the date you notify PayPal), or cross-border-initiated transactions, PayPal may take up to 90 days to investigate your complaint or question.

PayPal will tell you the results of our investigation within 3 Business Days after completing it. If PayPal decides that there was no error, PayPal will send you a written explanation of its decision. You may ask for copies of the documents that we used in our investigation.

If PayPal determines that there was an error, PayPal will promptly credit the full amount into your PayPal Account within 1 Business Day of PayPal's determination.

Processing Errors

PayPal will rectify any processing error that PayPal discovers. If the error results in:

- You receiving less than the correct amount to which you were entitled, then PayPal will credit your PayPal Account for the difference between what you should have received and what you actually received.
- You receiving more than the correct amount to which you were entitled, then PayPal will debit your PayPal Account for the difference between what you actually received and what you should have received.
- PayPal not completing a transaction on time or in the correct amount, then PayPal will be responsible to you for your losses or damages directly caused by this failure, unless:
 - through no fault of PayPal, you did not have sufficient available funds to complete the transaction;
 - PayPal's system was not working properly and you knew about the breakdown when you started the transaction; or
 - the error was due to extraordinary circumstances outside PayPal's control (such as fire, flood or loss of Internet connection), despite PayPal taking reasonable precautions.

Processing errors are not:

- Delays that result from PayPal applying holds or limitations.
- Delays based on payment review pursuant to PayPal Worldwide Terms.

- If applicable, delays described under How to buy something related to the time it may take for a purchase transaction to be completed in some situations pursuant to PayPal Worldwide Terms.
- Your errors in making a transaction (for example, mistyping an amount that you are sending).
